

The new-found Northerne Deedle:

O R,

Mirth and wit according to the times,
Fancies to fit, are in these following times?

To the tune of This is my Grannams deedle.

My mother's a good old woman,
Beloved of Knights and Peasants,
That never did hurt to no man,
Her huts together wil sustaine:
to call for the new-found deedle,
to call for my Grannams deedle,
to call for the Dadyes deedle,
this merry conceit of the deedle.

And also my sister Nanny,
So beautifull and comly,
Content will give to any,
And please them though here so many:
in dancing the new found deedle,
in dancing my Grannams deedle,
in dancing the Dadyes deedle,
this merry conceit of the deedle.

My brother a swaggering gallant,
Knows Gilsland, Blabstant, Zelane,
And lately is come out of Holland,
To England to spend his talant:
and calls for the new found deedle,
come play us my Grannams deedle,
my Mammies and Dadyes deedle,
this merry conceit of the deedle.

The Courtiers toynes so dainty,
Of gold which haue great plenty:
will drinke, carouse, and be merry,
And sack it in pleasant sherry.

and calls for the new found deedle,
come play us my Grannams deedle,
the new found Northerne deedle,
this merry conceit of the deedle.

The Lady which takes upon her,
The style of state and honour,
Will ride in Majestick manner,
With gallants attending on her,
and calls for the new found deedle,
come play us my Grannams deedle,
the new found Northerne deedle,
this merry conceit of the deedle.

The tradesmens wifes of the city,
So handsome, neat, and pretty,
So trim standynge, witty,
Delight in no other witty:
but call for the new found deedle,
come play us my Grannams deedle,
the new found Northerne deedle,
this merry conceit of the deedle.

The country lasses so bonny,
With breath as sweet as honey,
For cost they care not any,
But fraily will spend their money,
and calls for the new found deedle,
come play us my Grannams deedle,
the new found Northerne deedle,
this merry conceit of the deedle.

25. 6. 28. 167.

The new-found Northerne Deedle:

O R,

Mirth and wit according to the times,
Fancies to fit, are in these following times?

To the tune of This is my Grannams deedle.

My mother's a good old woman,
Beloved of Knights and Peasants,
That never did hurt to no man,
Her huts together wil sustaine:
to call for the new-found deedle,
to call for my Grannams deedle,
to call for the Dadyes deedle,
this merry conceit of the deedle.

And also my sister Nanny,
So beautifull and comly,
Content will give to any,
And please them though here so many:
in dancing the new found deedle,
in dancing my Grannams deedle,
in dancing the Dadyes deedle,
this merry conceit of the deedle.

My brother a swaggering gallant,
Knows Gilsland, Blabstant, Zelane,
And lately is come out of Holland,
To England to spend his talant:
and calls for the new found deedle,
come play us my Grannams deedle,
my Mammies and Dadyes deedle,
this merry conceit of the deedle.

The Courtiers wines so dainty,
Of gold which haue great plenty:
will drinke, carouse, and be merry,
And sack it in pleasant sherry.

and calls for the new found deedle,
come play us my Grannams deedle,
the new found Northerne deedle,
this merry conceit of the deedle.

The Lady which takes upon her,
The style of state and honour,
Will ride in Majestick manner,
With gallants attending on her,
and calls for the new found deedle,
come play us my Grannams deedle,
the new found Northerne deedle,
this merry conceit of the deedle.

The tradesmens wifes of the city,
So handsome, neat, and pretty,
So trim standynge, witty,
Delight in no other witty:
but call for the new found deedle,
come play us my Grannams deedle,
the new found Northerne deedle,
this merry conceit of the deedle.

The country lasses so bonny,
With breath as sweet as honey,
For cost they care not any,
But frisse will spend their money,
and calls for the new found deedle,
come play us my Grannams deedle,
the new found Northerne deedle,
this merry conceit of the deedle.

25. 6. 28. 167.

The second part, To the same tune.

The young men to neatly attired,
Whose bawteries are admired,
When any bawtire wchick they heare it, Most heartily doe belte it,
this merry conceit of the deedle,
to heare the new found deedle,
come play us my Grannams deedle,
the new found Northerne deedle,

The muscall shill spottian, Wheneuer he his condition:
To play it he hath an ambition,
Because unto him they petition:
to play the new found deedle,
to play them my Grannams deedle,
the new found Northern deedle
this merry conceit of the deedle:

The Carpenter, Dason, and Glaster,
The bonny blacksmith, the Brasster,
And Barber that trims with a raze,
Will merry be when they haue leasure:
and call for the new found deedle
to play them my Grannams deedle,
the new found Northerne deedle
this merry conceit of the deedle.

The Tannar and merry Shoemaker,
The Waltman, the Piller, and Baker,
And Weiver with them is partaker, I boldy that truth may be speake:
to call for the new found deedle
and call for my Grannams deedle,
the new found Northerne deedle
this merry conceit of the deedle.

The huffie and well limbo dailes,
The nimble and spruce neat Tayloz, Agred like god selfises that present Together they wold be pleasant, and have the new found deedle,
this merry conceit of the deedle,
the new found Northerne deedle,
O this is my Grannams deedle.

To se these madlads come resling, Bearing, saking, and fesling,
With pleasing smeling and tasling, Crying out of spenochriffs wasling,
that spending, desires the deedle,
the new found Northerne deedle,
my good old Grannams deedle
the Mammy and Daddier deedle.

Blind Fortune following after,
Haused a hearty laughter,
To see polt-stoked Vulcan, Tossing off many a full can,
and singing the new found deedle, &c.

Mercury, Mars, and Venus,
So witty and engenious,
Brought in the yong god Cupid
To stire at poyse mortalls so stupis;
for learning the new found deedle, O this my Grannams deedle,
the Mammy and Daddies deedle,
a merry concited deedle.

F I N I S. R. Guy.
Printed at London for Tho: Lambert.

The new-found Northerne Deedle:

OR,

Mirth and wit according to the times;
Fancies to fit, are in these following rimes!

To the tune of This is my Grannams deedle.

My mother's a good old woman,
Beloues of knyghts and yeoman,
That never did hurt to no man,
Her houts together wil susten:
to call for the new-found deedle,
to call for my Grannams deedle,
to call for the Dadyes deedle,
this merry conceit of the deedle.

And also my sister Nanny,
So beautifull and comly,
Content will give to any,
And please them though here so many:
in dancing the new found deedle,
in dancing my Grannams deedle,
in dancing the Dadyes deedle,
this merry conceit of the deedle.

My brother a swaggering gallant,
Knows Gylverland, Brabant, Zeland,
And lately is come out of Holland,
To England to spend his talant:
and calls for the new found deedle,
come play us my Grannams deedle,
my Mammies and Dadyes deedle,
this merry conceit of the deedle.

The Courtiers wines so bawdy,
Of gold which have great plenty:
Will drinke, carouse, and be merry,
And sack it in pleasant Sherry.

and calls for the new found deedle,
come play us my Grannams deedle,
the new found Northerne deedle,
this merry conceit of the deedle.

The Lady which takes upon her,
The style of state and honour,
Will ride in Spayflich manner,
With gallants attending on her,
and calls for the new found deedle,
come play us my Grannams deedle,
the new found Northerne deedle,
this merry conceit of the deedle.

The tradesmens wines of the city,
So handsome, neat, and pretty,
So tame stambling, witter, Delight in no other vittie:
but call for the new found deedle,
come play us my Grannams deedle,
the new found Northerne deedle,
this merry conceit of the deedle.

The country lasses so horney,
With breaths as sweet as honer, For cold they care not are,
But fraily will spend their money,
and calls for the new found deedle,
come play us my Grannams deedle,
the new found Northerne deedle,
this merry conceit of the deedle.

245. 6. 28. 267.

The second part,

To the same tune.

The young men to neatly attired,
Whose broideries are admires,
When any bane wchick they heare it, Most heartily doe desire it,
this merry conceit of the deedle,
so heare the new found deedle,
come play us my Grannams deedle
the new found Northerne deedle,

The muscall child Buffian, Wotwener be his condition:
To play it he hath an ambition,
Because unto him they petition:
to play the new found deedle,
to play them my Grannams deedle,
the new found Northern deedle
this merry conceit of the deedle:

The Carpenter, Mason, and Glazier,
The bonny blacksmith, the Brasier,
And Barber that trims with a raze,
Will merry be when they haue leave:
and call for the new found deedle
to play them my Grannams deedle,
the new found Northerne deedle
this merry conceit of the deedle:

The Tanner and merry shomaker,
The Spalman, the Spiller, and Baker,
And Brewster with them is partaker, If boldly that truth may be speake:
to call for the new found deedle
and call for my Grannams deedle,
the new found Northerne deedle
this merry conceit of the deedle.

The lustie and well limbo daide, The nimble and spruce neat Taylor, Agred like god sellowes that present Together they would be pleasant,
and have the new found deedle,
this merry conceit of the deedle,
the new found Northerne deedle, & this is my Grannams deedle.

To see these mad lads come reeling, Rearing, sieing, and sieeling,
With pleasing smelling and tafting, Cryng out of Spendthriftis wastng,
that spending, desires the deedle,
the new found Northerne deedle,
my good old Grannams deedle
the Mammy and Daddies deedle:

Blind Fortune following after,
Haused a hearty laughter,
To see polt-footed Vulcan, Tolling off many a full cau,
and singing the new found deedle, &c;

Mercury, Mars, and Venus,
So witty and engenious,
Brought in the yong god Cupid
To stire at poore mortalls so stupid,
for learning the new found deedle, & this my Grannams deedle,
the Mammy and Daddies deedle,
a merry conceited deedle.

F I N I S. R. Guy
Printed at London for Tho: Lambert.